

I think that satellite radio should be allowed to compete in the local broadcasting market. The current national programming is great, offers better variety than radio, and the signal is a much higher quality. The addition of local weather and traffic news has helped me on my commute to the silicon valley for several months.

XM - keep up the great job!! And give your listeners some free songs or downloads from your website once in a while - the internet/satellite radio connection is here to stay!!
